Next release of INSPIRE schemas – v.2022.2

- Inclusion of the change proposals endorsed by the MIG as of 31/7/2022

Release process

The release of the endorsed changes to the INSPIRE schemas happens twice a year and it is scheduled to take place by January 31 and July 31. This means that:

- all the changes endorsed by the MIG (either after the two-week scrutiny or during the MIG meeting in June) between February and July will be included in the release published by July 31;
- all the changes endorsed by the MIG (either after the two-week scrutiny or during the MIG meeting in November) between August and January will be included in the release published by January 31.

In addition to the scheduled releases, hotfix releases of the schemas, i.e. releases that fix critical bugs, might be released at any time.

All the releases, including a full changelog listing the changes made, are published (and will remain available) in the Releases page of this repository. After each release, the INSPIRE schemas at <https://inspire.ec.europa.eu/schemas> are updated accordingly.

Conversion of INSPIRE TGs in AsciiDoc

- The procedure used to convert the Metadata TG has been reused and improved.
- An adaptation has been required for the conversion of different TGs (Network Services and Data Specification) + Final manual revision
- According to the plan the first two TGs have been already converted:
 - View Service TG: it is already available in the 2022.2 branch of the “technical-guidelines” repository.
 - SO TG: it is in the final stage of the review and will soon be included in 2022.2 branch.
- Both TGs will be included in the next 2022.2 release due by July 31, 2022, including the related changes already endorsed.
